Sir Sidney Montagu, Great Grandfather of the late Earl, was constituted Master of the Court of Requests in the Reign of King Charles I. and was elected Knight of the Shire for the County of Huntingdon, in 1640; but was expelled the House for refusing to take an Oath the House had framed for their Members, "That they would live and die with their General the Earl of Essex."

Sir Edward Montagu, his Son, was born July 27, 1625, and had a Commission from the Parliament, in 1643, to raise a Regiment of a thousand Men, in the County of Cambridge, which he raised accordingly, and was in most of the considerable Actions in that War, particularly at Naseby, in 1645, behaving with that that Gallantry, that he was advanced to the Command of Brigadier-General the same Year, when he was but twenty Years of Age. He was afterwards appointed with Desborough to execute the Office of High Admiral, and was joined with Blake in the Command of the Fleet, after whose Death he had the sole Command, and the Address, as well as the Honour, of bringing the whole Fleet to submit to King Charles II. and thereupon set sail with them to the Coast of Holland, in order to convoy his Majesty King Charles II. to England, whereby he contributed no less than General Monk to the Restoration of that Prince: And his Majesty, at his Arrival in England, constituted him one of the Knights of the Most Noble Order of the Garter; and, on the 13th of July, the same Year, 1660, in the 35th Year of his Age, created him Baron Montagu of St. Neots in Huntingdonshire, Viscount Montagu, and Earl of Sandwich; he was also made Master of the King's Wardrobe, Admiral of the narrow Seas, and Lieutenant-Admiral to his Royal Highness the Duke of York, Lord High Admiral of England. Bishop Parker, in the History of his own Times, relating this Engagement, says, "The

" Earl of Sandwich having shattered seven of the Enemy's Ships, and beat off three Fireships, at length overpowered, fell a Sacrifice to his Country. 23. SCOT, DUKE OF BUCCLEUCH, EARL OF DONCASTER.

THE Most Noble HENRY SCOT, Duke of Buccleugh, Earl of Dalkelth, Baron Scot of Buccleugh and Eskdale, and a Peer of England by the Title of Baron Scot, of Tindale in Northumberland, and Earl of Doncaster in Yorkshire, was born ad September, 1746, being great Grandson of James Duke of Monmouth and Buccleugh, and Earl of Doncaster, who was the eldest Son of King Charles II. by Mrs. Lucy Walters, Daughter of Richard Walters, Esq; and was born at Rotterdam, in Holland, April 9, 1649, and went by the Name of James Crofts until his Majesty's Restoration. In the Year 1662, the King sent for him over into England, and an Apartment was assigned him in Whitehall. The next Year the King created him Baron of Tindale, Earl of Doncaster, and Duke of Monmouth, and made him Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter. The same Year, 1663, he married the Lady Anne, sole Daughter and Heir of Francis Earl of Buccleugh, one of the greatest Fortunes in Great-Britain. Upon this Marriage he took the Name of Scot, and they were created Duke and Duchess of Buccleugh in Scotland. He was appointed Master of the Horse to his Majesty, Anno 1665, and Captain of the Life-Guards, in 1668; and on the Death of his Grace the Duke of Albemarle, Anno 1669, he was constituted General of his Majesty's Forces, Lord Lieutenant of the East-Riding of Yorkshire, Governor of the Town and Citadel of Hull, and Chief Justice in Eyre of all Majesty's Forests and Chases South of Trent; and in 1672, he was constituted Lord High Chamberlain of Scotland.

The same Year 1672, he commanded the six thousand English and Scots, which joined the French Army on the Frontiers of Holland, and was constituted Lieutenant-General of the Forces of Lewis XIV. being present at the taking of Rhineburgh, Doesburgh, and Zutphen, and at the Reduction of Utrecht, where the French King kept his Court for some Time. In the Year 1673, he was at the Siege of Maestricht, and commanded at the Attack of the Counterscarp. The Town being taken, the Duke with the British Forces withdrew, it not being thought for the Interest of England to assist the French in making an entire Conquest of the United Provinces.

The Duke was elected Chancellor of the University of Cambridge in 1674; and as he had formerly commanded the Forces sent to the Assistance of the French against the Dutch, he made a Campaign under the Prince of Orange, in the Year 1678, against the French, and was at the Attack of the Abbey of St. Dennis.

The Field Conventiellers in Scotland breaking out into Rebellion, in the Year 1679, and having assembled a very formidable Force, the Duke of Monmouth was sent down to suppress them, and giving the Rebels Battle at Bothwell-Bridge on the 22d of June, totally defeated them, taking a great Number of Prisoners, among whom were several of the Murderers of the Archbishop of St. Andrews; and returning to Court in Triumph, appeared at that Time very high in the King's Favour. Nor was he less in the Favour of the People, on his appearing at the Head of what was called the Protestant Party, and shewing an uncommon Zeal against those who were accused of the Popish Plot; but the King falling sick, and the Duke of York being sent for over from the Netherlands, and finding the Duke of Monmouth had rendered himself exceeding popular, was apprehensive of his having an Eye upon the Crown: He procured him therefore to be dismissed from all his Places, and sent abroad; but the King recovering from his Illness, thought it convenient also that the Duke of York should return to Flanders before the Meeting of the Parliament. The Duke of York thereupon resided at Brussels, and the Duke of Monmouth at Utrecht; but the Duke of Monmouth on a sudden returned from Holland, without the King's Leave, and arriving at London on the 27th of November, about Midnight, the Watch gave Notice of it in the several Wards. The People thereupon immediately illuminated their Houses, rung the Bells, and made Bonfires, as if it had been for some notable Victory; but the Duke of Monmouth coming over without the King's Leave, did not think fit to attend the Court; and soon after his Friends the Lords Shaftsbury, Russell, and several other Persons of Distinction, presented the Duke of York as a Recusant at the Bar of the Court of King's-Bench, which made the Duke of York their professed Enemy. The King calling the next Parliament to meet at Oxford, the Duke of Monmouth, the Earl of Essex, and several other Lords, petitioned his Majesty that the Parliament might not sit at Oxford, where they suggested the Houses could not act with Freedom; but that he would be pleased to order them to sit at Westminster, the usual Place, where they might consult and act with Safety. This Petition was signed.

The King frowned on the Petitioners, and gave them no Answer; and, on the 21st of March, 1680-81, the Parliament met at Oxford, and a Bill was brought into the House for excluding the Duke of York from the Crown, and securing the Nation against a Popish Successor, read the first Time, on the 28th of March, 1681, and ordered a second Reading. Whereupon the King came to the House, and made a Speech, wherein he observed, That their Beginnings were such, that he could expect no good Success from their Debates, and therefore dissolved them; and a Plot, denominated the Rye-house-Plot, being discovered at this Time, the Earls of Shaftesbury and Essex, Lord Russell, Colonel Sydney, and several more, were taken into Custody, as Conspirators, and soon after the Duke of Monmouth; but the Duke was admitted to Bail, and the King being satisfied he was not concerned in that Part of the Plot relating to the Rye-house, granted his Grace a Pardon, who thereupon went over to Holland, where he remained till the Death of King Charles II, which happened on the 6th of February, 1684-5.

The Duke of Monmouth being strongly possessed with an Opinion that his Mother was married to King Charles II, and that consequently he had an undoubted Right to the British Crown, advised with the Earl of Argyle, and the rest of his Friends in Holland, on the Feasibleness of making a Descent in England, and asserting his Right to that Throne. They were pretty unanimous as to the Probability of Success, the Duke being so exceeding popular, and the Nation generally jealous of the King's Design to introduce Popery; only one Party were of Opinion, that Things were not yet ripe; that it were better to wait till the King had made some Advances towards the Alteration of Religion, and the People's Fears of Popery heightened. Others insisted, that they were more likely to succeed if they made the Attempt before the King was well settled on his Throne, and while the Duke's Interest was so considerable in England; but the Earl of Argyle being for an immediate Descent, and embarking in order to make a Diversion in the Duke's Favour in Scotland, land, it was carried for an immediate Descent upon England; whereupon the Duke hired a Frigate of thirty-two Guns, and three small Tenders, one of which was detained by the Dutch, on the English Minister (Skelton) applying to the States to prevent these Ships sailing. However the Duke proceeded in his Voyage with the Frigate and two Tenders, and, after a tedious stormy Passage, arrived at Lime, in Dorsetshire, the 11th of June, 1685, his whole Force not amounting to two hundred Men, including Officers; but having brought over Arms for five thousand more, and great Numbers of the Country-People joining him, his Forces soon became very formidable, the Militia constantly flying before him.

From Lime the Duke marched cross the Country to Taunton-Dean, in Somersetshire, where he caused himself to be proclaimed King, and set a Price upon the King's Head, as the King had upon the Duke's, and caused him to be attainted of High-Treason in the Parliament, which was then sitting. Whereupon the Duke, in his Declaration, called the Parliament a seditious Assembly, and advancing afterwards to Bridgwater, he continued his March towards Bath and Bristol; but receiving Advice that a Body of regular Troops was in full March for the West, he thought proper to retire to Bridgwater again, where he had lain but a little while before the King's Forces arrived within three or four Miles of that Town, commanded by the Earl of Feversham and Lord Churchill, afterwards Marlborough, who encamped on Sedgmore; of which the Duke receiving Advice, and being at the same Time informed that the Officers fell to drinking every Evening, and continued at it till Morning, and that their Outguards were very negligent in their Duty, he formed a Design to surprize the Camp of the Royalists in the Night-time; but his Guides, either through Ignorance or Treachery, led the Duke's Forces a great way round about, insomuch that it was broad Day-light when they arrived at the Camp of the Royalists, whom they found ready to receive them. However the Duke's Foot fought very bravely, and bid fair for Victory, Victory, till the Lord Gray, who commanded the Horse, abandoned the Infantry, and left the Field; or rather, he found his Cavalry, which consisted only of Country Fellows, whose Horses would not stand fire, were soon put into Confusion, when they were charged by regular Troops; whereupon a total Rout succeeding, the Duke endeavoured to make his Escape; but was taken the next Day, and being brought up to Town, was suffered to see the King, and beg his Life; but was however executed on Tower-hill on Wednesday the 15th of July, 1685. But surely never was the Death of any Prince more lamented by the People, who would not be persuaded he was dead, but remained in Expectation of seeing him appear in Arms again, for some Years.

THE Right Honourable ANTHONY ASHLEY COOPER, Earl of SHAFTESBURY, Baron Ashley of Winborne St. Giles, Baron Cooper of Pawlet, Baronet, Lord Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the County of Dorset, succeeded Anthony, the late Earl, his his Father, in February, 1712-13. His Lordship married, on the 12th of March, 1724-5, the Lady Susan Noel, Sister to Baptist Earl of Gainsborough, by whom he hath no Issue.

Anthony late Earl of Shaftesbury, Father of the present Earl, was born the 26th of February, 1670. He married, in 1709, Jane, Daughter of Thomas Ewer, of Bushy-Hall in Hertfordshire, Esq; by whom he had Issue, Anthony, the present Earl, his only Son. This Lady died in November, 1751.

This noble Earl is descended from Richard Cooper, who flourished in the Reign of King Henry VIII, and purchased the Manor of Paulet, in the County of Somerset, of which the Family are still Proprietors. But his Ancestor, who makes the greatest Figure in History is, Sir Anthony Ashley Cooper, who was afterwards created Earl of Shaftesbury, and constituted Lord High Chancellor of England. He is generally admired for his great Parts and Learning. He was a Student of Exeter-College, in Oxford, from whence he removed to Gray's-Inn, one of the Inns of Court, where he made a considerable Proficiency in the Study of the Law. He was elected Member of Parliament for Tukesbury in Gloucestershire, in the Parliament that met at Westminster the 13th of April, 1640, being then about twenty-five Years of Age. In the Beginning of the Civil War, 'tis said he raised a Regiment for the Service of King Charles I. being then Sheriff of the County of Dorset, and made Governor of Weymouth in that County; but Colonel William Ashburnham being made Governor of the County of Dorset, whereby Weymouth became dependant on him, Sir Anthony, imagining that his Loyalty was suspected, came up to London, and offered his Service to that Part of the Parliament which sat there, who gave him a Regiment of Horse, and the Command of all their Forces in Dorsetshire. But notwithstanding he appeared a hearty Champion in the Cause of the Parliament, he seems to have opposed Cromwell's Usurpation with great Spirit; whereupon Sir Anthony, and above a hundred more of the same Stamp, being kept out of the

the House of Commons by Force, published a Remonstrance, setting forth that the Protector had assumed absolute and arbitrary Power, and that every Man ought to assist in opposing it. That the small Number of Members he suffered to remain in the House could not pretend to be the Representatives of the People; they were not entrusted to consent to any thing in behalf of the Nation, if the rest were excluded from sitting and debating Matters in the House; which had such an Influence on the next Convention the Protector called; that they began to question his Authority; whereupon he dissolved them, and ever after discountenanced and oppressed the Presbyterian and Republican Party. Whereupon Sir Anthony and his Friends began to turn their Eyes upon the King, believing his Restoration would prove a less Evil than the tyrannical Government they were under; and as the King's Circumstances were very low at this Time, and he appeared forsaken by all the Princes of Europe, they did not doubt but they should get the Presbyterian Sect established, and the Prerogatives of the Crown considerably reduced, if they engaged to assist him in his Restoration. After the Death of Cromwell, the Rump Parliament appointed him one of their Council of State, and a Commissioner for managing the Affairs of their Army, which did not divert him from his Design of restoring the King, 'tis said; and, in the Year 1659, he was accused before the Rump, of keeping a Correspondence with his Majesty, and raising Men to join Sir George Booth for that End; for which he was imprisoned, with a great many other Men of Figure. He was, however, acquitted of the Charge, and afterwards intrusted by the Rump with the Command of a Regiment of Horse, being one of the first which declared for General Monk and a free Parliament; and, when the Convention had declared for the King, he was one of the twelve Members sent by that House to the King, with six Peers, to invite his Majesty to return and take the Government of the Kingdom upon him: Whereupon the King, with this Committee of Parliament, embarked for England, and arrived at Dover ver the 25th of May, 1660, and coming to Canterbury the next Day, General Monk, and Sir Anthony Ashley Cooper, was sworn of the Privy-Council; and Sir Anthony was afterwards appointed one of the Commissioners for the Trial of the Regicides; and, three Days before the Coronation, he was created Baron Ashley of Winbourne St. Giles's; soon after he was constituted Chancellor and Under-Treasurer of the Exchequer; and, in May, 1667, he was constituted one of the Commissioners of the Treasury. In 1672, he was created Lord Cooper of Pawlet, in the County of Somerset, and constituted Lord High Chancellor of England.

One of the most remarkable Speeches he made in the House of Peers, when he was Lord Chancellor, was that in Relation to the Dutch War, in which he suggests, that the Hollanders were our greatest Enemies in point of Trade, and therefore ought to be extirpated; Delenda est Carthago were his Words. He advised his Majesty also to issue his Declaration for the Indulgence of the Dissenters, which the Parliament resolved was a dispensing with the Penal Laws; and yet, when the Matter came to be debated in the House of Lords, none censured it more severely. On the other Hand, it is said, he promoted the Test for rendring Papists incapable of enjoying any Office or Place of Trust, which obliged the Duke of York to lay down his Post of High Admiral, and all the other Places he held; which the Court resenting, the Seals were taken from Lord Shaftesbury, and he became as strenuous an Opposer of the Court, as ever he had been an Advocate for its Measures.

He was, however, constituted President of the Council in April, 1679; but continuing his Opposition to the Duke of York, and endeavouring to get him excluded from the Crown, he was laid aside again in March following, and became exceeding popular among the Presbyterian and Republican Party; and no Man prosecuted those who were charged with the Popish Plot with greater Violence: But his Enemies rendring him suspected of being in a Plot of another Nature, he thought

thought fit to retire to Holland, where he died on the 12d of January, 1682-3.
